Foreword

our youth is aflame with a spirit as transitional as our role in life--- we burn with accomplishments and victories failures and losses--- the 1967 edentonian
presents a picture of the fire
that lights our way
upward

A Flame!

Dedication

Mr. Powell teaches tenth and eleventh grade English and American literature. He is also a junior class sponsor.

because of his leadership--- his support--- his instruction--- the seniors of 1967
dedicate edentonian to a wonderful friend--- an excellent teacher--- Mr. Freddie Mayo Powell in hopes that this dedication
will show
our gratitude and appreciation

STUDENTS

the students---
aflame
with excitement--- pride---
burning with sadness---
defeat---
learn to face life
its rewards
and disappointments

School Year Prosperous

Mr. Cecil W. Fry, Principal, who is greatly respected by both students and faculty members, is responsible for an effective educational system.

Mr. Fry's secretary, Mrs. LaVoie, is relied upon by students, as well as by our principal.

Junior High Students Learn

Mrs. Morris who teaches social studies and English is explaining North Carolina history to two of her seventh grade students.

junior high students receive fundamental instruction in the arts and sciences--- seventh and eighth graders acquire maturity
independence through
new experiences

One of the main projects of the seventh grade accelerated class is the map of North Carolina in Mr. Boyce's room. Mr. Boyce also led his students in presenting a production of the Lost Colony.

Miss Jean Biggs also instructs students in English and social studies.

Fundamentals of Arts and Sciences

With very large seventh and eighth grade classes, Mrs. Askew has quite a job. She teaches science to most of the junior high school students.

Mrs. Kathryn Holton teaches modern math to the seventh and eighth grade students. Her courses include algebra for ninth grade students also.

Junior high math students use a binary counter to solve problems involving base two.

Students Receive Instruction

Miss Sally Lytch puts her physical education students through a series of exercises. These girls are very physically fit because of the program of exercising they have. They also learn the rules and skills involved in many games and sports.

Every student at John A. Holmes is required to pass four years of physical education.

Mr. Stuart Patten directs the high school band and the seventh grade band members.

Mrs. Patten teaches seventh and eighth grade public school music. She also directs junior high and senior high glee clubs.

The John A. Holmes band has an outstanding drum section. Here, they are shown playing at a football game.

Visual Aids Make

English is one of the most important courses for seniors who plan to further their education. Through Mrs. Bass's excellent instruction, the seniors learn essentials of writing and literature.

Mr. Powell's students profit not only from class lectures and individual projects, but also from their teacher's artistic and informative bulletin boards, which relate to the subjects they are studying.

In ninth and tenth grade English classes, Mrs. Jenkins teaches her students grammar thoroughly, and she gives them an introduction to creative writing and good literature.

Courses More Interesting

In French classes, emphasis is placed on pronunciation and comprehension rather than grammar. The students who take French are taught by Mrs. Smith.

Coach Bumgarner teaches seventh grade classes and geography and government, a course taken by seniors.

Coach Kirby's world history students study current events as well as past cultural developments. These classes read and discuss newspapers each week.

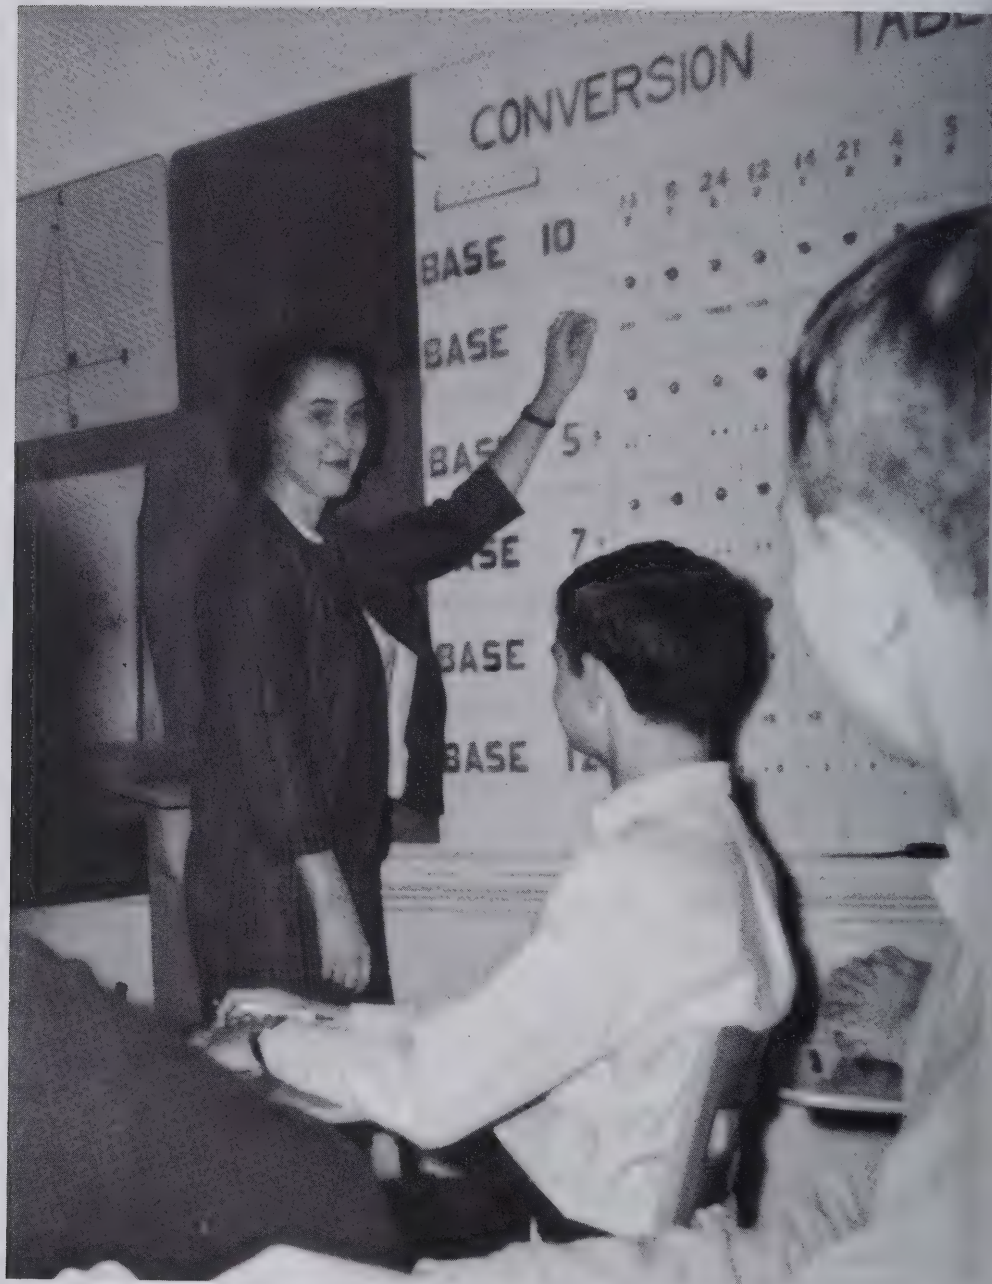

United States history students benefit from the use of maps, film strips, and other visual aids. This year, Coach Kinion has been assisted by student teacher, Tom Bass.

Students Learn to Think Rationally

scientific and mathematical concepts conveyed to students through standard and advanced courses

Mathematics students who study some modern math learn how to use the conversion table for different bases. Mrs. Hollowell teaches advanced mathematics, geometry, and algebra.

through Science and Math Courses

Mrs. Boswell helps two of her students perform an experiment. Mrs. Boswell teaches physical science and math.

Mrs. Holliday discusses with Ray Goodwin some of the technicalities of photography. A small physics class permits valuable individual instruction such as this.

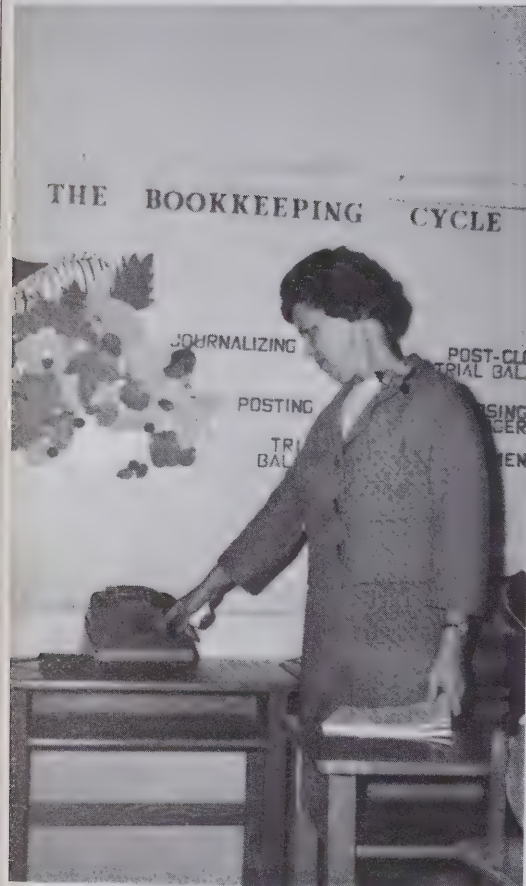

Chemistry students Ronnie Harrell, Wayne Hollowell, and Ellen Cuthrell are doing an experiment involving the process of filtering. Work in the lab is a very vital part of this course.

Mrs. Wood instructs business students in bookkeeping and office practices. Her students learn to keep journals and use many kinds of office machines.

First-year home economics students learn to prepare complete meals in a family system. Here, Mrs. Reaves shows Jessica Spruill how to prepare her part of the meal.

Business, Metals, Home Economics

Mrs. Mayo, who also teaches advanced typing and shorthand, gives beginning typists a daily timewriting.

Mr. Stalls teaches technical drafting and a course in vocations for boys.

High school boys learn how to work with metals in a class that meets for three hours each day. Mr. Jordan teaches this class and an introduction to metals, which is a prerequisite for working with metals.

Guidance Counselor, Librarian,

Students in all grades receive guidance, but Mrs. Kinion is especially helpful to seniors as they make educational plans and prepare themselves for college.

The officers of Future Teachers of America are shown working on their bulletin board in Mrs. Boswell's room.

Shown here is the fair booth that the F. T. A. members constructed. The completed booth emphasized American Education Week.

Pictured with their adviser, Mrs. Boswell, are this year's members of the F.T.A. The display on education in the library was made by the Future Teachers.

Purposes of Some Organizations

There are more library club members at John A. Holmes than there have been for some time. This is partly due to the beginning of a junior high club.

this year
library club is divided--- junior club
senior club---
club members and sponsors
work
to improve library facilities and encourage good reading habits

Library assistants are of great help to the librarian, Miss Graham. These students check out books, collect fines, and arrange books.

Involve Working for the Whole School

During the halves it takes a lot of boys working to keep the spectators cool.

Monogram Clubs Prosperous

The Monogram Clubs are made up of athletes who have lettered in at least one sport and who have gone through initiation. All the members can tell you that these are pretty stiff requirements. One might say that the athletes must have, first of all, ability for the playing field; and secondly, endurance—for initiation night.

Excellent Band Speaks Well

Mr. Stuart Patten, band director, originates very entertaining half-time shows for all ball games.

Mary Sexton and Beth Moore are busily practicing for the band's Christmas concert, which is given in cooperation with the glee club.

Increase In Members Makes

high school junior high glee clubs present concerts at Christmas--- in the spring
large groups
contain much potential for good performances

Over forty students who participate in high school chorus constitute the largest group in the recent history of our school. Quality seems to come with quantity, for the glee club performs excellently.

Glee Clubs More Active

Junior high also has a large number of students in their chorus. Their performances indicate that John A. Holmes will have an excellent music department in the coming years.

New Techniques

Mr. Powell; the SPOTLIGHT adviser, Ann Jordan, and Linda Hollowell proofread yellow copies of articles and also of the stencils when they are completed.

Sports articles are written by Ronnie Harrell and Sanfra Ange.

Editor-in-chief, Larry Parks, has proven to be one of the best and most capable SPOTLIGHT editors in recent years.

When the SPOTLIGHT comes out on time, the typists are the ones to thank, for their speed and accuracy make the production run smoothly.

Improve Spotlight

staff members receive journalistic training pride in accomplishments--- this year's staff--- to be praised for desire--- diligent work--- excellent issues

The art work and headlines are done by the artists, John Graham and Beth Bissette. Shown with them is Junior editor, Carroll Lassiter.

On that hectic day when the SPOTLIGHT comes out, Don Jordan and Frankie Katkaveck keep the duplicator going.

Students who read and enjoy the SPOTLIGHT often forget the people who put time and thought into the production of the paper. The articles that entertain and inform them are written and submitted by the news staff, pictured above.

Probably the most enjoyable articles are written by Grace Sawyer and Amy O'Neal, who are the human interest writers.

Staff of Seniors Compiles

Layout staff members, Ann Harrell, Vonnie Wright, Larry Parks, and Clara Blanchard, work in close cooperation with Editor-in-chief, Ivy Lowe, and assistant editor, Mary Wozelka.

Danny Hassell, circulation manager, headed the campaign that sold a very large number of yearbooks. Shown here, he is assisted by staff members Gail Cozzens and Jo Anne Covington.

Typists, Tillie Cordon and Linda Ashley, actually type over a hundred originals and carbon copies for the annual.

Yearbook Reflecting Year's Activities

Hubert Sartain and his business staff, Ricky Hardin, Brian Twiddy, Cisco O'Neal, and John Dowd, were responsible for seeing that all the ads were sold and listed.

EDENTONIAN staff members give time and abilities to compile an annual showing their activities accomplishments--- the yearbook is a lasting tribute the senior class Photographers for the EDENTONIAN are Linda Hollowell, Joe Stokely, and Sanfra Ange.

Junior co-captain Helen Jernigan controls a rebound. Helen's height enables her to excel in defense and rebounding as a starting guard.

Rover Beth Moore is one of the team's leading scorers. The sophomore is very accurate and is often high scorer.

Although she suffered a knee injury, Linda Hollowell still sparks the ACELETS' offense in her position as stationary forward.

Shows Ability and Desire

Became Setting for Prom

Members of the freshman class provided entertainment of the oriental style in elaborate Japanese costumes.

The "Adrians" from Virginia Beach was the orchestra for the prom.

The workers shown here were probably saying, "Will we ever finish by Friday night?"

Sadness . . .

ashes

we the seniors of 1967 now experience sentimentality
sadness
as we look back upon the ashes of our school years—
we leave regretfully
the students
we have led the instructors
who have led us
the school whose accomplishments
we shall forever
remember with pride but we look hopefully toward a life of happiness that can be fanned from the fire that began within us at John A. Holmes

Martino
 I enjoyed listening to you and the Basic 5.00 much I specially enjoyed being in classes with you. Also I enjoyed enjoyable, enjoying you and yourself.
 P.S. I that makes any sense to you, you're pretty smart or very dumb.
 your friendly enemy,
 Billy

Martino
 Its been a great year having you in my science class. I hope you have a great summer take me back riding every day. Nope. you pass with A's like I will. And

Martino
 I have really enjoyed this year like all other years we've been in school together. This year we had something like a vacation didn't have your pal
 Possey

BAS. 5.00

I enjoyed being friends on science to come that was for the year in your name for the year I signed on science
 P.S. (congrats)
 (Jorrell)

Martin?
Best of wishes and love to a good friend. Watch your step the girls alone and your have a few more days to live Roy

Martin,
you're a friend that will always and as for that the same for me.
Be good to your drums.
Don't forget my paper any more... hint, hint. Best of luck always in all you do

P.S. Be good Basic member and fear upon the Drums.
